The Old City

The Old City of Jerusalem has been a holy Site for the world's three monotheistic religions for Centuries. The people, prophets and prayers of Judaism, Christianity and Islam fill the streets and sites of the Old City. Thousands are drawn on pilgrimage to this city each year to take in the breathtaking skyline.

Down within the centuries-old streets of the Old City are cobblestone alleyways, bustling marketplaces and newly unearthed archways that bring to life the stories of Jerusalem's four quarters. From the food to the shopping, the Old City streets are lively with traditions old and new.

King David Street and Mishkenot Sha'ananim/ Yemin Moshe

King David Street hosts the finer hotels in Jerusalem – the King David Hotel, The David Citadel Hotel and the Waldorf Astoria Hotel and runs from the Mamilla Mall to Mishkenot Sha'ananim and Yemin Moshe neighborhoods. Built over 150 years ago by Sir Moses Montefiore, Mishkenot Sha'ananim became the first Jewish residential area outside the Old City walls and Yemin Moshe was built next to it a few years later. Today, these are upscale neighborhoods with spectacular views of the Old City. The Windmill recognized as the hallmark of Yemin Moshe, is a common feature in Jerusalem art and literature and marks the western expansion of the city.

The Inbal and The King Solomon Hotels face these neighborhoods and The Dan Panorama and Kings Hotels are within 5 minutes walking distance.

The German Colony Emek Refaim street

The German Colony (HaMoshava HaGermanit) was established in the second half of the 19th century by members of the German Templar Society. The colorful history of the German Colony is illustrated by the mix of architectural styles found within a relatively small area, which add a special aura to the neighborhood. Today the "moshava", as it is popularly known, is an upscale neighborhood bisected by Emek Refaim Street: an avenue lined with trendy shops, restaurants and cafes.

Machane Yehuda Market

The Machane Yehuda market is widely recognized as one of the great symbols of Jerusalem, and for many residents of Jerusalem, it represents much of what makes them Jerusalemites. Machane Yehuda integrates the old and new – it is a bustling marketplace and a neighborhood, a place to shop, eat and drink and of course relax and soak up the aura of Jerusalem. Even with the addition of many cafes, restaurants and boutiques in recent years, the market still retains its authenticity with all the flavors, aromas and colors still intact and of course, with its legendary shopkeepers lively interacting with the crowds.
